“The Milesian Lady’s Gift; Celebratory Dining in the Sanctuary of the Great Gods.” An architectural investigation of the most splendid dining facility in the Sanctuary of the Great Gods forms the centerpiece of a study of celebratory dining within the architecture and cult of the Sanctuary.

Books in Progress:

Northern Aegean Architectural Networks. Co-edited with W. Alyward and J. des Courtils. An investigation of architectural dynamics centered on two northern Aegean islands, Samothrace and Thasos, in the Hellenistic and Roman periods.

Samothrace; excavations conducted by Emory University and the Institute of Fine Arts of New York University: Vol. 8,I. Buildings in the Vicinity of the Nike Monument. Publication of record for the the Stoa, Nike Precinct, and Theater. Multiple authors.

The Island of Great Gods. A synthetic book on Samothrace and the Sanctuary of the Great Gods focused on the dynamic interaction of place and cult, situated within the broader context of religious experience, political dynamics, architectural developments, and social history of the eastern Mediterranean, from the first evidence of cult activity in the 7th century BC through the Roman period.

Current Research Projects:

Samothrace; excavations conducted by the Institute of Fine Arts of New York University: Vol. 8,I and 8,II. Buildings on the Western Hill. Publication of record for the monuments on the western hillside of the Sanctuary. Part I includes the Stoa, Nike Monument, and Theater. Part II includes the monuments clustered on the northern terraces, including the Neorion, Milesian Banquet Hall, Building A, and the Hestiatorion. Multiple authors.

Current Scientific Projects:

Sanctuary of the Great Gods, Samothrace, Site Preservation Plan, Phase II. A comprehensive plan for conservation interventions and site management across the western region of the Sanctuary, in alignment with protocols established in Phase I of the site management program completed for the Eastern sector of the Sanctuary.

3-D digital model of the Sanctuary of the Great Gods, Samothrace. On-going construction of a comprehensive digital survey and model of the Sanctuary, aimed at exploring the passage and perception of initiands within the complex, orchestrated terrain of the Sanctuary. With Aryabrata Basu, Vincent Baillet, Ian Burr, and Michael C. Page, Emory Center for Digital Scholarship.

Geology and Geomorphology in the region of the Sanctuary of the Great Gods on Samothrace, Greece. Collaborative project with W. B. Size and M. C. Page, (Emory Environmental Sciences); Manolis Skourtsos (University of Athens), and Richard Pope (University of Derby), initiated June 2013. An investigation of the geologic and geomorphological processes that originally shaped the area identified as sacred space, and the histories of the rocks forming the sanctuary and used in the buildings, with the objective of understanding the interaction of natural phenomena and human decision-making in the construction of sacred space. Further objective is to use the newly acquired geologic data as a basis for determining conservation and site management practices.

Marble Analysis in the Sanctuary of the Great Gods, Samothrace. On-going research and analysis on marble types chosen for buildings and monuments in the Sanctuary. Collaboration with Yannis Maniatis (Demokritos Laboratory of Archaeometry, Athens).

Metrology in the Sanctuary of the Great Gods, Samothrace. Collaborative project with V. Hertzberg (Computer Science and Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing, Emory), using the excellently preserved corpus of Samothracian Hellenistic buildings as a case study for exploring statistical strategies for understanding the unit of measure used in the design and construction of ancient Greek buildings.
